

BSI-NEWS

Volume 14 Issue 3 (September 2024)

Announcement

Professor David Chan has been re-appointed as BSI Director with effect from 1 July 2024.

Upcoming BSI Seminars*• 1 Oct 2024

Biopsychosocial Determinants of Neurocognitive Health
Seminar by Tan Chin Hong
Assistant Professor of Psychology, NTU

• 22 Oct 2024

Can conflict improve organizational commitment and reduce turnover intention?
Seminar by Tsai Ming-Hong
Associate Professor of Psychology, SMU

• 5 Nov 2024

Consumer responses to scientific consensus: The moderating role of perceived motives of scientists.
Seminar by Kimin Eom
Senior Lecturer, Australian National University

Highlights of Recent BSI Webinar*10 Sep 2024

Setoh Pei Pei, Associate Professor of Psychology at NTU, presented a webinar titled "Parenting in Singapore: Insights from a Birth Cohort Study". She discussed the paradox of how strict parenting norms in Singapore can co-exist with strong family cohesion and positive child outcomes.

Insights and Applications from Behavioural Sciences

We are pleased to share the video recording of the Opening Keynote Address entitled "Frontiers in Health: Contributions from the Social and Behavioural Sciences", delivered by Professor David Chan at the Singapore Public Health and Occupational Medicine Conference, held on 23 Sep 2024. The conference was attended by over 300 officials, researchers, practitioners, and policymakers in the health and related sectors. We hope you will find this video useful and relevant. The video is in public domain and hence the link may be shared with anyone.

- YouTube
- LinkedIn
- Facebook

About BSI

The Behavioural Sciences Initiative (BSI) is a multi-disciplinary research initiative for creating, disseminating and applying scientific knowledge about human behaviours in various social, organisational and cultural settings. For more information, please refer to our website.